Residence-Interesting Personal Notes.

President and Mrs. McKinley inaugurated jubilee week by a dinner last night to Mr. St. Clair McKelway of the Brooklyn Eagle and Mrs. McKelway, who are visiting the city for a few days. Invited to meet them were the cabinet circle and Mrs. Hobart. The table, set in the private dining room, was beautifully decorated and a section of the Marine Band played during the evening. The President escorted Mrs. Hobart to the table and the Secretary of State Mrs. McKinley. At the public reception Wednesday night from 9 to 11 o'clock at the Executive Man-sion, the same rules will govern as during the winter season. Carriages and pedestrians will approach by the northwest gate, and leave by the northeast gate. HEARING POSTPONED.

Victim of Assault Unable to Appear as Witness.

The hearing of the case of Adam Wurach, who is charged with throwing carbolic acid on the arms, neck and face of Marie Emerson, proprietress of a house on C street northwest, early this morning was today continued in the Police Court until Saturday, it being understood that the worach today.

It is alleged that Wurach, who was formerly a purser on a steamer running out of Washington, had become infatuated with the Emerson woman. It is also said he has a wife and family in Baltimore. Same time since, it is asserted, the woman began to receive the attentions of another party, and she then ceased caring for Wurach.

sne then ceased caring for Wurach.

This enraged Wurach, it is alleged, and Sunday last he and the woman had a fierce quarrel about the other man. Last evening Wurach went to the house in question early, but the woman was absent. He left, and, after procuring a bottle of concentrated carbolle acid returned to the neighborhood.

after procuring a bottle of concentrated carbolic acid, returned to the neighborhood, where he lay in wait for her.

Soon after her return from the theater, which was about midnight, Wurach again went to the house. In answer to his ring the woman came to the door, and when she opened it Wurach, it is said, dashed the said was her, burning her badly. Two of acid upon her, burning her badly. Two of the inmates of the house. Etta Oliver and Meta Lewis, who were close to Miss Emerson, were also slightly burned about the

CENTRAL LABOR UNION. Report Concerning Float for Jubilee-

Other Matters Considered. President Szegedy occupied the chair at last evening's meeting of the Central Labor Union and Mr. J. L. Feeny was secretary. The committee on the float to be used in the civic parade of the peace jubilee made its final report, which was adopted. The float will be twenty feet long and profusely decorated with flowers, palms and the national colors. The twenty-seven allied organizations will each be represented by a little girl dressed in white, and carrying a banneret, with the name of the organization inscribed thereon.

The central body will be represented by a young lady attired in the national colors. She will also have a banner bearing the inspection of the instance of the instan scription, "Central Labor Union. Washington, D. C., 7,000." The float will be drawn by a team of six horses, each caparisoned. There will likewise be a driver and two postillions, and it is claimed that this will be the handsomest float in line.

Communications approving of the Central Labor Union's action in reference to Claude M. Johnson, director of the bureau of engraving and printing, and stating that pertitions asking for his removal have been titions asking for his removal have been forwarded by them to President McKinley, were read from Capital Typographical Union, No. 210, Salem, Oregon; Federal Labor Union, No. 7217, Des Moines, Iowa; International Association of Machinists, Chicago, Ill.; American Federation of Mu-Sicians, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Bricklayers Union, No. 1, of Washington, D. C.

A committee was appointed to secure from the national authorities a half holiday for each of the three days of the jubilee for the members of organized labor who are employed in the various departments of the government.

There was also a committee appointed to asserting the terms and arrange for the

In a recent issue of your paper I noticed the account of a man arrested for drunkenness, or intoxication, and the judge, in disposing of the case, remarked that, there being no other place to send the man, he was compelled to commit him for fifteen days. I suppose he was, therefore, sent to the workhouse. May I ask if, among all the many excellent charities in the District of Columbia, there is no place except the workhouse, or the jail, where an inebriate can be sent until he thoroughly sobers up? If so, is it not time that such a charity should be in existence here? Why not a home here for intemperate men? Why not an inebriate asylum?

If it be true that in order to enter a hos pital where one can receive treatment for alcoholism he must pay a large sum each week then the poor man has not the same opportunity nor privilege of curing his overindulged appetite as his more fortunate brother. It would, therefore, seem that if intemperance, or drunkenness, is a disease which can be treated or cured by any known remedies, or if the morphine can be treated or cured, then there is need for a retreat or a sanatarium for the poor unfortunate who has become a slave to an verindulged appetite.
